FROM HEADQUARTERS.

Synopsis.-In December, 1918, four men gathered in a hotel in Berne and heard one of the quartet, Carl Peterson, outline a plan to paralyze Great Britain and at the same time Great Britain and at the same time seize world power. The other three, Hocking, American, and Steineman and Von Gratz, Germans, all milionaires, agree to the scheme, providing another man, Hiram Potts, an American, is taken in. Capt. Hugh (Bull-Dog) Drummond, a retired officer, advertises for work that will give him excitement, signing "XIO." As a result he meets ing "X10." As a result he meets Phyllis Benton, a young woman who answered his ad. She tells who answered his ad. She tells him of strange murders and robberies by a band headed by Carl Peterson and Henry Lakington. She fears her father is involved. Erummond goes to The Larches, Miss Benton's home, next door to The Elms, Peterson's place. During the night Drummond leaves The Larches and explores The Elms. He discovers Lakington and Peterson using a thumbscrew on Potts, who signs a paper. Drummond son using a thumbscrew on Potts, who signs a paper. Drummond rescues Potts and takes him to his own home. He also gets half of the paper torn in the fight. Petervisits Drummond, departing with a threat to return and recover Potts and the torn paper. Hugh substitutes Mullings for Potts. The band carry off Mullings and Drummond to The Elms. When Peterson discovers the hoax Drummond is made to stay all night. Irma, Peterson's handsome daughter, warns Hugh he will be killed. "Don't worry, little girl," he said. "Years ago I was told by an old gypsy that I should die in my bed of old age and excessive consumption of invalid port. . . . As a matter of fact, the cause of my visit was rather humorous. They abducted me in the middle of the night, with an ex-soldier of my old battalion, who was, I regret to state, sleeping off the effects of much indifferent liquor, in my rooms. They thought he was your American millionaire cove, and the wretched Mullings was too drunk to deny it. In fact, I don't think they ever asked his opinion at all." Hugh grinned reminiscently. "A pathetic spectacle.

"Oh! but splendid," cried the girl a little breathlessly. "Tell me, where is the American now?"

"I know," he answered gravely. "I know, old thing. I promise I'll let you know anything I find out. And in the meantime I want you to keep an eve fixed on what goes on next door, and let me know anything of importance by letter to the Junior Sports club." He lit a cigarette thoughtfully. "I have an idea that they feel so absolutely confident in their own power that they are going to make the fatal mistake of underrating their opponents. We shall see," He turned to her with a twinkle in his eye. "Anyway, our Mr. Lakington will see that you don't come to any harm."

"The brute!" she cried, very low. "How I hate him!" sudden change of tone she looked up at Drummond. "I don't know whether it's worth mentioning," she said slowly, "but yesterday afternoon four men came at different times to The Elms. They were the sort of type one sees tub-thumping in Hyde Park. all except one, who looked like a respectable workingman."

"Good morning, Miss Benton," Peterson's voice behind them made Drummond swing round with a smothered curse. "Our inestimable friend Captain Drummond, brought such a nice young fellow to see me last night, and then left him lying about the house this morning. From a rapid survey, Mr. Peterson. I should think you have quite enough himself as the car rushed through the already," said Hugh. CHAPTER V.

In Which There Is Trouble at Goring ONE.

The car slowed up before the post office and Hugh got out. There were one or two things he proposed to do in London before going to Goring, and it struck him that a wire to Peter Darrell might allay that gentleman's uneasiness if he was late in getting down. So new was he to the tortuous ways of crime, that the foolishnes of the proceeding never entered his head: up to date in his life, if he sent one. And so it may be deemed a sheer fluke on his part, that a mar dawdling by the counter aroused his suspicions. He was a perfectly ordinary man, chatting casually with the girl on the other side; but it

Hugh caught his eye the inner breast-pocket of Mr. Grangfor a fleeting second; then the conversation continued. And as he turned to pull out the pad of forms, it struck him that the man had looked away just a trifle too quickly. . . .

A grin spread slowly over his face, and after a moment's hesitation he proceeded to compose a short wire. He wrote it in black letters for additional clearness; he also pressed his hardest, as befitting a blunt pencil. Then with the form in his hand he advanced to the counter.

"How long will it take to deliver in London?" he asked the girl. The girl was not helpful. It de pended, he gathered, on a variety of circumstances, of which not the least was the perfectly ordinary man who talked so charmingly.

"I don't think I'll bother, then," he said, thrusting the wire into his "Good morning. . . ." pocket. He walked to the door, and shortly afterward his car rolled down the

and she saw him no more. Moreover, it is to be regretted that the perfectly ordinary man told a He a little later in the day, when giving his report to some one whose neck ap parently inconvenienced him greatly. But then a lie is frequently more tactful than the truth, and to have announced that the sole result of his morning's labors had been to decipher a wire addressed to The Elms, which contained the cryptic remark, "Stung again, stiff neck, stung again," would not have been tactful. So he lied.

Alone and practically unguarded he had challenged a gang of international criminals; a gang not only utterly unscrupulous, but controlled by a master mind. Of its power as yet he had no clear idea; of its size and immediate object he had even less. Perhaps it was as well. Had he realized even dimly the immensity of the issues he was up against, had he had but an inkling of the magnitude of the plot conceived in the sinister brain of his host of the previous evening, then, cheery optimist though he was, even Hugh Drummond might have vavered. But he had no such inkling, and so the gleam in his eyes was but transitory, the chuckle that succeeded it more whole-hearted than before. Was it not sport in a land flowing with strikes and profiteers; sport such as his soul loved?

"I am afraid. Mullings." he said as his car stopped in front of his club, "that the kindly gentleman with whom we spent last night has repudiated his obligations. The man glanced at the check. "Fifty pounds, sir!" he gasped. Why-it's too much, sir. . . .

"The laborer, Mullings, is worthy of his hire. You have been of the very greatest assistance to me; and incidentally, it is more than likely that I may want you again. Now, where can I get hold of you?"

"13 Green Street, 'Oxton, sir, 'll always find me. And any time, sir, as you wants me, I'd like to come just for the sport of the thing."

"Good lad. And it may be sooner than you think."

Inside the Junior Sports club, Hugh Drummond was burying his nose in a large tankard of the ale for which that cheery pct-house was still famous. A waiter was arranging the first editions of the evening papers on a table, and Hugh beckoned to him to bring one. Cricket, racing, the latest divorce case, and the latest strike—all the usual headings were there. And he was just putting down the paper, to again concentrate on his problem, when a paragraph caught "STRANGE MURDER IN BELFAST

"The man whose body was discov-ered in such peculiar circumstances ear the docks has been identified as Mr. James Granger, the confidential secretary to Mr. Hiram Potts, the American multi-millionaire, at present this country. The unfortunate victim of this dastardly outrage-his head, as we reported in our last night's issue, was nearly severed from his body-had apparently been sent over on business by Mr. Potts, and ad arrived the preceding day. What he was doing in the locality in which e was found is a mystery.

"We understand that Mr. Potts, who as recently been indisposed, has reurned to the Carlton, and is greatly pset at the sudden tragedy.

"The police are confident that they vill shortly obtain a clue, though the rough element in the locality where the murder was committed presents great difficulties. It seems clear that the motive was robbery, as all the murdered man's pockets were rifled. But the most peculiar thing about the case is the extraordinary care taken by the murderer to prevent the identification of the body. Every article of clothing, even down to the murdered man ceased chatting and inal overlooking the tailor's tab inside er's coat that the police were enabled to identify the body."

Drummond slid down the paper on his knees, and stared a little dazedly at the club's immortal founder.

"Holy smoke! laddie," he mured, "that man Peterson ought to be on the committee here. Verily, I believe, he could galvanize the staff into some semblance of activity. "Did you order anything, sir?" A waiter paused beside him. "No," murmured Drummond, "but I will rectify the omission. Another large tankard of ale."

The waiter departed, and Hugh picked up the paper again.

"We understand," he murmured gently to himself. "that Mr. Potts, who has recently been indisposed, has returned to the Carlton. . . . Now that's very interesting.

He lit a cigarette and lay back in his chair. "I was under the impres sion that Mr. Potts was safely tucked up in bed, consuming semolina pudding, at Goring. It requires elucidation.'

"I beg your pardon, sir," remarked the waiter, placing the beer on the table beside him.

"You needn't," returned Hugh. "Up to date you have justified my fondest expectations. And as a further proof of my good will, I would like you to get me a trunk call-2 X Goring." A few minutes later he was in the telephone box.

"Peter, I have seldom been so glad to hear your voice. Is all well? Good. Don't mention any names. Our guest is there, is he? Gone on strike against more milk puddings, you say. him, Peter. Make a noise like a Have you seen the papers? There are interesting doings in Belfast, which

"People are so funny nowadays. eturned Longworth gloomily. "What is this job?"

Together the two men strolled into the luncheon-room, and long after the cheese had been finished, Algy Longworth was still listening in silence to his companion.

"My dear old bean," he murmured estatically as Hugh finished, "my very lear old bean. I think it's the most priceless thing I ever heard. Enroll me as a member of the band. And, incidentally. Toby Sinclair is running round in circles asking for trouble. Let's rope him in."

"Go and find him this afternoon Algy," said Hugh rising. "And tell him to keep his mouth shut. I'd come with you, but it occurs to me that the wretched Potts, bathed in tears at the Carlton, is in need of sympathy. So long old dear. You'll hear from me in a day or two." Drummond sauntered along Pall-

Mall. He had told Longworth more or less on the spur of the moment, knowing that gentleman's capabilities to a nicety. Under a cloak of assumed flippancy he concealed an iron nerve which had never yet failed him; and, in spite of the fact that he wore an entirely unnecessary eyeglass, he could see further into a brick wall than most of the people who called him a fool,

It was his suggestion of telling Toby Sinclair that caused the smile. For it had started a train of thought in Drummond's mind which seemed to him to be good. If Sinclair-why not two or three more equally trusty sportsmen? Why not a gang of the and reality had come back to him. "Mr. Potts will see no one, sir," re marked the man to whom he addressed his question. "You are about the twentieth gentleman who has been here already today."

Hugh had expected this, and smile

"Precisely, my stout fellow," he re marked, "but I'll lay a small amount of money that they were newspaper men. Now, I'm not. And I think that if you will have this note delivered to Mr. Potts, he will see me."

He sat down at a table, and drew sheet of paper toward him. Two facts were certain: First, that the man upstairs was not the real Potts; second, that he was one of Peterson's gang. The difficulty was to know exactly how to word the note. There might be some mystic pass-word, the omission of which would prove him an impostor at once. At length he took a pen and wrote rapidly; he would have to chance it.

"Urgent. A message from head

"This way, sir," he said, and Hugh stepped inside, to stop with an involuntary gasp of surprise. The man seated in the chair was Potts, to all intents and purposes. The likeness

"A name inside a breast-pocket might easily be overlooked," remarked Hugh, seizing the obvious clue.

"Are you making excuses for him?" snarled the other. "He's failed, and failure is death. Such is our rule. Would you have it altered?"

"Most certainly not. The issues are far too great for any weakness. . . ." "You're right, my friend-you're right. Long live the Brotherhood." He stared out of the window with smouldering eyes, and Hugh preserved a discreet silence. Then suddenly the they killed that insolent puppy of a soldier yet?"

"They must find the American at once." The man thumped the table emphatically. "It was important before-at least his money was. Now with this blunder-it's vital." "Precisely," said Hugh. "Precise-

"I've already interviewed one man from Scotland Yard, but every hour increases the danger. However, you have a message for me. What is it?" Hugh rose and casually picked up his hat. He had got more out of the interview than he had hoped for, and there was nothing to be gained by prolonging it. But it struck him that Mr. Potts' impersonator was a man of unpleasant disposition, and that tactically a flanking movement to the door was indicated. And, being of an open nature himself, it is possible that the real state of affairs for a moment on his face. "And the penalty of failure is death, isn't it, dear one?" He spoke almost dreamily; but not for an instant did his attention relax. Almost imperceptibly, he crept toward the other man, talking gently.

These "bundle" burials were disarticulated skeletons that had been taken down from trees and made into bundles. In each "bundle," as a rule, were the bones of from two to four individuals. They were placed end to end, lengthways, north to south, and formed a layer some ten feet long and five feet wide. They were placed on a carefully prepared bed of alternate layers of golden and bright-red sands. evidently of ceremonial import, and surrounded by several stone altars, On these, appropriate sacrifices were made to the dead; there were signs of fire all about. #### The U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Joseph H. Defrees, Chicago lawyer, administrator and business man, has been unanimously re-elected president of the chamber of commerce of the United States. This association comprises more than 1400 business organizations. President Defrees recenty sailed for Europe as a delegate to the International Chamber of Commerce convention. "It is the duty of every sincers American, big or little business man, farmer, lawyer, laborer, teacher, me-chanic, or clerk, to make his personal weight count for the stabilizing of social and industrial conditions," says Mr. Defrees. "The sober common sense of the American people must and will, I am satisfied, assert itself with respect to the responsibilities and duties of classes or groups, and even individuals.

"There are many signs of a broader outlook and a keener sense of pubponsibility. The proposition was well put by the secretary of labor: 'National stability and prosperity is therefore seen to be a problem of maintaining equality and justice between all factors, the worker in production lines, the organized worker, the interests of the manufacturer and of the distributor. ## Ambassador From Germany, If-

Dr. Frederick Sthamer is to be offered the place of German ambassador to Washington-if the need of an ador should arise. Like his predecessor. Count von Bernstorff, he has an American wife. She was a Miss Pollig, but nobody seems to know where her home was. She went to Hamburg as a child and was married about 30 years ago. Her husband is sixty-one years old.

Dr. Sthamer, at the time of his selection, was the German ambassa dor at London. Although there was naturally little beyond purely formal intercourse between him and the allied diplomats in London, except possibly the Italian, his relations with the British foreign office had been easy and fairly cordial. In fact, he was so satisfied that it was said he would refuse the Washington post if it was offered to him on the ground that he did not care to "have to break official and social fce all over again.'

Dr. Sthamer has been known which together with the House of Burgesses, has long governed that free city and republic. He is the commercial adviser of the senate council and is Hamburg's representative in several national commercial organizations, and is an expert on foreign trade policies.

John T. Adams of Dubuque, Is., succeeds Postmaster General Hays as chairman of the Republican national committee. Mr. Adams was succeeded by Ralph E. Williams of Portland, Ore. Mrs. L. G. Woods of Pittsburgh was elected second vice chairman, an office created in recognition of the wom-

From October, 1906, to January, 1911, he was editor and principal owner of the Washington Herald, and was editor-in-chief of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer from 1911 to 1918. During the campaign he was director of publicity for the Republican national committee. It is said that his appointment was a compromise in a lively fight. Washington was full of men who had journeyed all the way from Alaska to tell President Harding what to do about it. There were two groups. One group, representing what is generally called the Guggenheim interests, had several candidates, the best known of whom was named Hazlitt. This group's opponents centered on Judge Wickersham, formerly governor of Alaska, and also formerly delegate from Alaska.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER

ONE of the finest newspapers published in the United States, is The National Republican, of Washington, D. C. Besides being very ably edited by George B. Lockwood with equal fearlessness and fairness, it possesses several unique features which set it in the very forefront of the Nation's journalism.

Here are some of its peculiar advantages: 1st, It is published in Washington at the seat of Government in the midst of things National-legislative, civil, political and scientific, a situation which of necessity keeps it in close touch with history in the making, with the important events of the day that every citizen should know, at least in a general way. This fact gives this journal a superiority over others, even over the leading metropolitan papers.

2d. It gives weekly a brief and clear resume of the doings of Congress, a point of great value to anyone wishing to get the cream of Congressional news but too busy to wade through the official records or the full daily newspaper reports thereof.

3d. It also prints a summary of foreign news wherein the great questions and events of world-wide interest are plainly and briefly detailed.

4th. It gives every week in a perfectly fair and non-partisan manner, articles on special subjects in history, science and politics, especially those concerning our own country. These special articles are by leading writers, done in a fine literary manner and valu able enough for permanent preserva-

Not a few of these historical articles are so well written as to arrive, both in style and matter, at the dignity of literature, and the writer has saved a number, any one of which he thinks well worth the price of the paper for a whole year!

This admirable innovation places the National Republican upon a loftier plane than that of common journalism, and wins for Editor Lockwood the thanks of his countrymen of all parties for thus recounting to his readers the notable achievements of our country's he

Instead of the sensational, sometimes vicious, reading that usurps so large a place in the newspapers of the day, how wise to substitute such sensible, solid matter which while it entertains also helps form the character that is the basis of all good citizenship.

Finally, lovers of good fiction will enjoy its excellent stories by foremost writers of the day, as for example, the one by the well-known Irving Bacheller now running, "A Man For The Ages." For themselves and for their children parents should subscribe for this supremely fine weekly-The National Republican.

THE DIFFERENCE

ADVOCATES of the League of Nations profess to see no difference between the league and an association of nations for the purpose of promot ing peace and disarmament. Stupic they are, indeed. By the provisions o the League covenant, the United State would bind itself to act in accordance with the decrees of a League council or assembly not only in the matter of war and armament, but in all other matters which could be interpreted as threatening war. That was the effect of the covenant, taken as a whole. It was the creation of a superstate from which a nation could not withdraw ex cept upon two years' notice and then only on condition that its obligations had been fulfilled up to the time of withdrawal. For all practical purposes, the United States, if a member, would be compelled to accept the decisions of the League or be branded as a repudi ator of agreements. An association of nations would be formed for the one purpose of agreeing upon a plan of disarmament, no nation or group of nations would have any power to coerce any other nation, and the United States would be absolutely free forever after to act in each pai ticular case according to its own judgment and conscience. The Leagu covenant proposed to bind the United States to go to war at the command of the League. After participating in an association of nations, the United States would still be free to go to war or not go to war according to its own judgment of the right and wrong of the controversy.

The United States has been an associate of other nations in the past. It was an associate in the war in Europe -not one of the Allies. The United States was an associate of other nations in activities in China during the Boxer Rebellion. The United States has been an associate of other nations in forming the Hague conferences and tribunal. But in these associations, this country has never forfeited or impaired its full right to act in its own defense, nor bound itself to act upon the commands of other nations further than its own judgment dictates.

The difference between the league and an association of nations is all the difference between subservience and in-

Boundless Enthusiasm Wins

One thing chiefly explains the phenomenal growth and prosperity of our Western towns—the boundless enthusiasm of their citizens working with a furious zeal that surmounts all obstacles, to win the highest honors for their town or city.

This enthusiasm built our second greatest city on a morass, and another metropolis on a narrow rocky ledge. THE PEOPLES NATIONAL BANK bids Middletown imbibe that live Western spirit that wins so gloriously.

—Talks About Building

Lumber prices are deflated. Lumber, the last great commodity to advance in price, has been the first to come back to a normal basis. While lumber constitutes less than 30 per cent of the cost of the average frame house, these reductions mean an important saving in building costs.

Building labor is more efficient. A reduction in the wage scale is less important than a full day's work for a day's pay. Increased efficiency has already brought about a substantial reduction

You can build now with confidence. Deliveries of material are certain, prices can be protected against advances, and building labor is available. No longer is it necessary to build on the "costplus" plan.

There are good reasons why many people should build homes for themselves. If you have been thinking about building we invite you to talk it over with us personally. We will gladly help in meeting any of your building problems and our friendly counsel and assistance will not obligate you in any way.

HANDY FASTENER ON GARAGE DOOR

Steel Lever Working on a Pivot So Arranged That It Is Easily Operated.

ADAPTABLE TO ALL WEATHERS

Device Shown in Illustration Is Prac tical and Convenient in All Cases Where Double Doors Have Been installed.

The usual style of latch for garage and other double doors that are exposed on one side to the weather, allows the doors to warp, which makes them difficult to fasten. To avoid this, the fastener shown in the sketch was devised. The device consists of a 16-inch long, 2-inch wide, and 3/4inch thick steel lever working on a pivot on one door, a washer being placed between the door and the lever. At 4 inch on the right and left-hand sides of the pivot, holes are bored. Iwo U-shaped pieces are then made out of flat iron bars that are of sufficient size to slide easily along the bar.

Bar Holds Plungers.

Two 1-inch round bars are cut to uch a length that they will project 11/2 inches over the top of one door

This Device Will Be Found to Be a Practical and Convenient Door Fastener Which Gives Satisfaction in All

and the bottom of the other. One end of each bar is then welded to the center of each U-shaped piece, a hole being bored at a right angle to the side of the piece and through the legs. A rivet is then inserted through the hole in the round bar and legs of the U section. The rivet should be of sufficient tightness to allow the bar to move freely up and down. Make a guide out of a piece of a rectangular iron bar, part of which should be twisted while hot at a right angle A hole of sufficient size to slip over the top of the plunger is bored in one end, and screw holes put through the opposite end. This bar holds the plunger in a vertical position.

Prevent Wear on Holes.

To prevent wear on the holes in the casing and sill, it is best to have a short, flat bar of steel with a hole bored in its center and also screw holes near its ends, screwed to the top casing and sill of the door. guide is also to be made for the bottom plunger. Both the top and bottom plunger rods should be tanered slight. ly at their ends, so that they will easlly enter the holes bored in the casing and sill. When the handle of the plunger rods are level with the top and bottom of the doors.

BRAKE RODS REQUIRE CAREFUL ATTENTION

Majority of Automobile Owners Neglect Them.

Inspection Should Be Made at Leas Every Month From Pedal to Drum, Particularly Parts Difficult to Get At.

The brakes of an automobile are designed for efficiency and long life if given proper attention, but because it is inconvenient to clean and inspect and lubricate them, the majority of auto owners utterly neglect them. Every month or two there should e an inspection of the brakes from pedal to drum, particularly the parts that are out of sight under the car and difficult to get at, according to H. Clifford Brokaw, of West side Y. M. C. A. auto schools, New York city. They should be cleaned of mud and gummed grease with kerosene, bil holes should be opened up thoroughly and every part inspected for wear Small parts which are worn may be replaced for a few cents and this may prevent a serious accident caused by the brakes giving away at a critical time. The brake linkage should be lubricated in accordance with the lubrication chart of the car with persistent regularity. Brakes will work easier, and give better service if they should be kept adjusted so that they work with equal force upon each wheel. Uneven adjustment produces undue wear on tires and is a frequent cause of skidding. The adjustment is so simple there is no excuse for neg-

PLAN FOR LAPPING PISTONS

Of Many Substances Used in Operation Rotten Stone Has Been Found Most Satisfactory.

Many substances are used in the operation of lapping pistons. Among them are fine emery dust, ground glass and rotten stone, of which the latter gives best results. Standiford in Popular it should be given both a reciprocating and oscillating motion.

"AUTO-ARM" IS LATEST MOTORING SIGNAL TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS

The picture practically tells its own tale of this new auto signal, calculated to keep the cars following from bumping into one. Also, the signal tells the traffic cop ahead what the chauffeur intends to do at the corner. The device is situated directly in front of the driver, so that he knows what signal is showing-no chance of a breakdown causing an accident. The operating lever is within easy reach from the driving wheel.

LESSON FOR JULY 10

SAUL THE PHARISEE

LESSON TEXT-Acts 7:54-8:3; 22:3, 4; 6:4, 5, 9, 10. GOLDEN TEXT-Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief.—I Tim. 1:15. REFERENCE MATERIAL—I Cor. 15:9;

Gal. 1:13; Phil. 3:4-6; I Tim. 1:13. PRIMARY TOPIC—Going to School in Jerusalem.—Acts 22:3, 4; 5:34. JUN 10 R TOPIC—Saul Persecuting

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC

1.. Saul's Training as a Pharisee (Acts 22:3,4; 26:4,5).

1. Taught to love his own nation. "I am a Jew." The Pharisees were the nationalists of their day. Those who are intelligently loyal to their own nation can more effectively help others. 2. Taught to love God's law, "Taught according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers." Love for the Holy Scriptures is a valuable asset in life. One may misinterpret it and dangerously misapply it; but if he has love in his heart for it there is hope of getting him to come into right relationship to it.

3. Was "zealous toward God." The root of the word "zealous" signifies "to boil." It means a passion for God and His work. It was zeal for God that made Saul think of and plan for his work. This zeal for God ex-pressed itself in persecution of the Christians whom he regarded as doing that which was contrary to God's law and purpose. He spared neither age nor sex, even to imprisonment and death (Acts 22:4).

II. Saul Thoroughly Conscientious (26:9, 10).

In his conscientiousness he opposed Jesus, for he regarded Him as an impostor. Saul is to be commended in that he responded to his conscience, but he is to be condemned for his attitude toward Jesus; for there was verwhelming evidence that Jesus was God's Son and came in fulfillment of the Scriptures. The resurrection of Christ was such an outstanding miracle-a proof of the Deity of Christ. that there was no room left for doubt. Saul was to be blamed for nis ignorance. Conscience is the law of life for every man, but it should be regulated by the Word of God.

III. Stephen's Martyrdom (Acts 7: 54; 8:3).

In order to understand the significance of his martyrdom we must obtain a synthetic view of his life.

1. Who Stephen was (6:1-7). He was one of the seven who were appointed to look after the temporalithe crank on a backfire and keep it ties of the church. A division of the newly formed church was averted by the appointment of properly qualified men to look after the distribution of the benevolences.

2. Why Stephen was opposed (6:S-15). In his work he testified of Christ and by the Holy Spirit wrought mira These mighty works aroused the people. The following features characterized him: (1) Wisdom, which means common sense; (2) grace, which means beauty of character; (3) power. He had the ability to do wonders and great signs and speak the truth effectively. The men of the opposing synagogues were not able to "withstand the wisdom and the Spirit by which he spake." arrested and brought him before the great council. Even here they could not silence him by argument, so they decided to do it by violence. When the hearts of wicked men are set against the truth, the testimony of Spirit-filled men only exasperates them. They accused him of blasphemy and employed false witnesses to prove that he had made an attack upon the tem-

3. Stephen stoned (7:54-60). Before the council he made a magnificent defense. This he did by tracing the history of Israel from the call of Abra ham to the crucifixion of Christ. His aim in this review was to show that God never had been localized and that the temple was but a small part of God's plan. In his address he did not speak against the temple, but showed that God did not in the fullest sense dwell in it at any time. He proved this from Scripture (Isa. 61: 1, 2; I Kings 8-27). In his conclusion he declared that the Jews had always been a stiff-necked people, resisting the Holy Spirit, and now their stubbornness had reached its culmination in the betrayal, rejection and murder of the Son of God. This charge cut to the heart. His argunents were unanswerable. Being unvilling to answer him and at the same time to accept the truth presented their anger was stirred to its highest oitch; so their only answer was stones. They gnashed upon him as a mad dog. In this hour of trial God gave him a wonderful vision. He was permitted to see into heaven itself, and there he got sight of the glorified Son of Man standing at the right hand of God. 4. Shephen's burial (8:1-3). His death is described as a falling asleep. This is really all that death is to the Christian. Devout men buried him, making great lamentation over him.

Are You Weak or Willful? "The Kingdom of God would tri-umph gloriously in this generation were there not so many sick saints in Yes, but the wilful strong, set upon their own way, hinder the coming yet more. Are you weak, or wilful, that the Kingdom is not hastened by

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he can not be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of the house often saves a doctor's bill o

Biliousness And Constipation

"For years I was troubled with bil-iousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and ca-thartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been to-day had I not tried Chamberlain's Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill fablets. The tablets relieve the infeeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally," writes Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala.

Treat Yourself To a --KODAK=

ATACATION days are here, and everyone visiting friends should have a Kodak to catch their faces and figures as mementoes of happy reunions, or when traveling, to preserve lovely views on the seashore or in the woods, etc.

So, wherever your vacation leads, you will need a'Kodak to keep in memory the scenes of your various visits and trips in the Summer of

FINE KODAKS ONCE MORE

During the War, the Government commandeered every one of those superb Eastman lenses, "f. 7-7" now used in "No. 2C Autographic Kodak Jr." This is the first season the Eastmans have been able to place this style on the market. It is truly a wonderful Kodak which experts using several new inventions have brought to perfection, and for only a very moderate sum.

It is especially famous for its anastigmatic lenses which give a very sharp colorless definition, and this, with a quick shutter etc., gives pictures that delight everyone, so charmingly perfect they are in every detail!

We can furnish you fine Kodaks from $2.00 up, this superb "No. 2C Kodak Jr.," costing only $25.00, $3.00 less than in 1920. Also other superior Kodaks from $8.00 up. Then by all means get a Kodak; it gives no end of pleasure to everyone, and is now so mechanically perfect any child can use it.

Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette

BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper -secure foil wrapping-revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigaretty aftertaste,

It's Camels for you.
